

10-18 East Street

These properties have the appearance of a pair of large H-plan houses with two cross-wings each which have evolved through a process of alternate rebuilding over a period of almost 300 years, though whether their development was quite as straightforward as this is a matter of debate. Their individual phases are described separately in the reports on the houses, but the following plan is offered to help clarify the sequence of development.

Plan to explain the development of the component parts of 10-18 East Street